

Brief Summary

1. Leading Cross-Strait Economic Exchange Indicators

(1) Cross-Strait Bilateral Trade

- a. According to the Hong Kong Customs Statistics, the value of Taiwan's trade with Mainland China via Hong Kong totaled US$1.05 billion over the first month of 2004, a loss of 1.51% as compared to the same period of last year. Cross-strait bilateral trade accounted for 4.69%, and 1.47% of Taiwan's and Mainland China's total foreign trade, a loss of 0.45 percentage points from 5.14% at the end of 2003, and a loss of 0.17 percentage points from 1.64% at the end of 2003 respectively. Comparing the first month of 2004 with the same period of last year, Taiwan's exports to Mainland China via Hong Kong loss 2.46% to US$0.87 billion, while imports from Mainland China via Hong Kong gain 3.23% to US$0.18 billion. Exports to Mainland China accounted for 7.33% of Taiwan's total exports, decreasing 0.84 percentage points from 8.17% at the end of 2003, while imports from Mainland China accounted for only 1.73% of Taiwan's total imports, gaining 0.03 percentage points from 1.70%. Meanwhile, exports to Taiwan accounted for 0.51% of total Mainland China's exports, gaining 0.02 percentage points from 0.49%, on the other hand, imports from Taiwan accounted for 2.42% of Mainland China's total imports, decreasing 0.43 percentage points from 2.85%.

- b. Comparing the statistical data officially released by Taiwan and Hong Kong, it was apparent that the figure released by the Taiwan Customs Statistics in the value of "Taiwan exports to Hong Kong" is greater than that of "Hong Kong imports from Taiwan" published by Hong Kong Customs Statistics. As a result, if one only considers the figures of Hong Kong Customs Statistics, cross-strait bilateral trade would be underestimated. In addition, Taiwan has changed the policy and strategy for cross-strait bilateral trade since in Feb. 2002, and promoted exporters to be honest to write down China as their export goods' destination. Since the work did effect, in order to estimate cross-strait bilateral trade more precisely, the estimation formula has been changed since 2002, with regard to the formula please refer to the table 6. Therefore, according to the formula, the estimated value of total cross-strait bilateral trade of the first month of 2004 is US$3.95 billion, in which Taiwan's exports to Mainland China amounted to US$2.90 billion while imports from Mainland China reached US$1.05 billion. Accordingly, Taiwan's trade with Mainland China would account for 17.63% of Taiwan's total foreign trade during the first month of 2004, with exports to China accounting for 24.54% of Taiwan's total exports and imports from Mainland China accounting for 9.91% of Taiwan's total imports.
